Bernard Biermans Bernard Biermans (1530–1597) was a German theologian and academic, a university professor at the University of Wittenberg. He was a member of the Wittenberg Circle of Tübingen, and mentor to Martin Luther. He was also a civil servant, serving as cathedral and public administrator in Germany. Life Bernard Biermans was born in the village of Lautlingen in the historic county of Kyffhäuserkreis in the area of present-day Thuringia in Saxony. He was the son of a modest farming family who had immigrated to Wittenberg, then the principal seat of the Augsburg Confession, for safety. His family converted to Lutheranism in 1525, and he was brought up as a Lutheran. Biermans was trained as a minister and taught in Paderborn, where he was active as a church leader from 1553 and set up a school for pastors. The year b7e8fdf5c8

Want a website look like this? Modern Design – this is part of a design pack which is known as “The Avon”. The pack was produced by my client in-house and available for purchase. The design uses the “Avon” logo and package. The pack contains the following design elements: * A web page template * A page style which can be used for a blog style website * A blog style logo (JPG) * A logo font style, as well as a colored version (JPG) You can preview the elements in the preview palette. You can also change the colors by adjusting them on the color swatch. For more information please see my customization guide – below The bundle is licensed as a 2-way license, which means that it can be used in personal/group projects and websites. It is also an extremely low cost compared to buying the elements in individual form. The cost is 49.00 [US$ 40.77]. A word of advice: if you want you can create your own website using the elements and save yourself some money. In order to achieve that, you will need a hosting service (such as “Bluehost”) which allows you to choose the way you want your website to be. Either as a free domain or as a sub-domain. For more information on that, please see my blog post about website building here. In order to make it look like the website above, we created the following example website (using the elements from the pack) using the free domain package: This design has a login form and it contains the Avon element. The front page uses a gradient background and contains various shapes. Skills: Video/Animation/Flash/Photoshop
